PAISA VILLAGE - MEDELLIN

The Paisa Village in Medellín is one of the most visited tourist sites in the city that combines three elements that we all love: the Antioquian tradition that is reflected in the crafts, gastronomy and architecture of the place; the majestic view of Medellín and the mountains that run through the Aburrá Valley.

In addition to enjoying the charm of the architecture of one of the “most country” destinations in Medellín and being able to take photos with one of the best panoramic views of the city.

COMMUNE 13 - MEDELLÍN

This commune is known as “The birthplace of Pablo Escobar”, where long ago it was an epicenter of violence, precarious houses built in the middle of the hills, narrow and steep streets, which generated multiple alleys and viewpoints, ideal for criminals and the drug trade. Thank you for the efforts of the community, especially the young artists and without a doubt the government. Currently they have turned it into a totally tourist site and it is really worth going to see it.

GUATAPE

Located 75 kilometers from Medellín, is Guatapé, known as the most colorful town in Colombia and which has become known by the visitors who arrive daily, attracted by the beauty of the photographs that can be taken in this place.

GUATAPE

A wonder of nature, from where you can see the panoramic view of the reservoir of more than 2,200 hectares, which consists of several islands in green tones surrounded by calm waters that invite contemplation and rest. From there, you can see the old location of the town, since a cross has been located that emerges from the water and serves as a historical symbol.
